Special Collections Gift Policy
University of North Texas Health Science Center (HSC)
Gibson D. Lewis Health Science Library

I. Mission

Special Collections in the Gibson D. Lewis Health Science Library is devoted to collecting, organizing and preserving the heritage of osteopathic medicine, to documenting the history of the university, and supporting the research endeavors of the University of North Texas Health Science Center (UNTHSC). Special Collections is located on the third floor of the Library.

II. Types of Programs Supported by the Collection

There are three main categories of material in the Special Collections: the Historical Book Collection, Archives and Manuscripts, the Image Collection and the Oral History Collection.

III. Clientele

Students, faculty and visitors are invited to utilize the unique resources of Special Collections for their study and research.

IV. Collecting

Lewis Library collects and maintains manuscripts, photographs, film, negatives, slides, media, artifacts, historic materials and digital materials that document the history of UNTHSC, the research endeavors of the university, and current and historical osteopathic materials. Materials are acquired through donation and purchase.

V. Gift Policy

The Library accepts gifts and donations of books, journals, and other materials based on their value to the collections. However, due to limited staff and space for print journals, the Library can no longer accept donations of print journals without prior authorization. Please contact the following individuals when donating a gift to our library.

In preparation for receiving gift, the Library asks that you complete the following form describing the gift and transferring ownership to the library.

Once accepted, it should be understood that the items become the property of HSC. Donors must have the authority to transfer ownership and sign a Deed of Gift.

The Library asks that the donor communicate any information they might have concerning copyright of the items being donated. If the donor controls the copyright in all or some of the property being donated, the Library asks that the copyright be transferred.

VI. Tax Deductions and Appraisals

Gifts to the Library are tax deductible. The Library will provide an acknowledgement of all gifts received and this serves as receipt for tax purposes. The Library cannot provide an appraisal for a gift it receives; therefore it is the responsibility of the donor. The Library encourages donors to obtain an appraisal of their gifts, however the appraisal and cost of the appraisal is the responsibility of the donor. Any donor, who presents a gift valued at over $5000, must provide the Library with an appraisal from a qualified appraiser who meets IRS guidelines.

VII. De-accession Policy

The Library reserves the right to transfer materials to a more appropriate collection or to dispose of materials that do not fall within the scope of the collection.

VIII. Access

There will be no restrictions upon access to items accepted into the collection and materials will be made available to all researchers on equal terms. Upon acceptance, materials will be made available for public access once organized and cataloged. If copyright has been obtained by the Library, this may include digitization for electronic access.

Although these materials do not circulate, they can be used within the Special Collections or other area designated by the librarian in charge. Photocopying and scanning of most materials is allowed. Due to the unique and fragile nature of some materials, photocopying can be provided upon request by Library staff. Pricing of photocopy service to be determined upon consultation.

IX. Transportation

The Library can assist the donor with the logistics of delivering the materials to the Library from within the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Any shipping costs from outside the area are the responsibility of the donor.

X. Review of Policies

This policy will be periodically reviewed and changed when necessary to meet the goals of the Library.
